Defining "Substantial" Percentage of Industrial Water Use Draft (08/02/2010)

SBx 7-7 "would require the state to achieve a 20% reduction in urban per capita water use in California by December 31, 2020. The state would be required to make incremental progress towards this goal by reducing per capita water use by at least 10% on or before December 31, 2015. The bill would require each urban retail water supplier to develop urban water use targets and an interim urban water use target, in accordance with specified requirements. The bill would require agricultural water suppliers to implement efficient water management practices. The bill would require the department, in consultation with other state agencies, to develop a single standardized water use reporting form. The bill, with certain exceptions, would provide that urban retail water suppliers, on and after July 1, 2016, and agricultural water suppliers, on and after July 1, 2013, are not eligible for state water grants or loans unless they comply with the water conservation requirements established by the bill. The bill would repeal, on July 1, 2016, an existing requirement that conditions eligibility for certain water management grants or loans to an urban water supplier on the implementation of certain water demand management measures."

The bill authorizes the department, through a public process and in consultation with the California Urban Water Conservation Council, to develop methodologies and criteria for calculating base daily per capita water use, interim daily per capita water use, and compliance daily per capita water use. Calculating the base, interim, and compliance per capita water uses would require estimating gross water use. Gross water is defined in the statue as (Section 10608.12 (1)) "the total volume of water, whether treated or untreated, entering the distribution system of an urban retail water supplier". The bill provides credits to existing water conservation measures by subtracting them from the estimated gross water use. Section 10608.24 (e) states that "When developing the urban water use target pursuant to Section 10608.20, an urban retail water supplier that has a substantial percentage of industrial water use in its service are, may exclude process water from the calculation of gross water use to avoid a disproportionate burden on another customer sector."

Process water is defined in the statue as (Section 10608.12 (l)) "water used for producing a product or product content or water used for research and development, including, but not limited to, continuous manufacturing processes, water used for testing and maintaining equipment used in producing a product or product content, and water used in combined heat and power facilities used in producing a product or product content. Process water does not mean incidental water uses not related to the production of a product or product content, including, but not limited to, water used for restrooms, landscaping, air conditioning, heating, kitchens, and laundry."

This draft document is prepared to present an initial attempt by the department at defining what constitutes "substantial" percentage of industrial water use and, in the process, showing the "disproportionate burden" on another customer sector.

Data Source

The water use data for years 2005 through 2008 were obtained from the California Urban Water Conservation Council (CUWCC) to asses the extent of industrial water use throughout the state. Any conclusions and recommendations made by DWR are not those of the CUWCC.

Table 1 shows the total number of water suppliers who have complete data sets for calculating the percentage of industrial water use for each year. The data used in this analysis represents approximately 30 percent of the total water suppliers in the state. Although it may not be a random sampling, we believe that the data is representative of all water suppliers' state wide and distributions will remain similar. Tables 3 and 4 present lists of urban water suppliers that were used in this analysis.

Data Analysis

The first step in this analysis was to calculate the ratio of industrial water use to the total water use. This ratio was placed in a new data column of the spreadsheet and sorted from lower to higher values. Figure 1 shows histogram of these ratios for the year 2005. Histograms of ratios for years 2006 through 2008 are very similar to the year 2005 and therefore are not shown here. What is clear from the histograms is that most retail suppliers industrial water use is a very small fraction of their total water use.. The cumulative percent of a ratio, say X, was calculated as the number of data points (retail suppliers) with ratios less than or equal to X to the total number of data points (retail suppliers). This is done to obtain quantile plots of the data from which "substantial" percentage of industrial water use is to be determined. Although the law doesn't define substantial explicitly, it refers to the amount of industrial water use that may cause disproportionate burden on other customer sectors. It has to be understood that the cut off point for what is to be "substantial" can only be determined based on scientific knowledge or regulatory decisions. Since "substantial" and "disproportionate burden" were available here, in this discussion paper an initial cut off point of 80 percent of the total retail water suppliers was selected for demonstration purposes.

Figure 1. Histogram of ratios of industrial water use to total water use for the year 2005. Results

Figure 2 shows the cumulative percentage of retail water suppliers versus the ratio of industrial water use to total water use for years 2005 through 2008. It is clear from this figure that there are slight differences across the years. Therefore, average values were calculated at a given cumulative percentage value. Table 2 shows results of such calculations for cumulative percentage values 60 through 95 in increments of 5.

Using Figures (1 & 2) and Table 2, it was decided to first look at a cumulative percentage of 80 percent of the total retail water suppliers which would include a significant numbers of retail water suppliers, resulting in a 4 percent of industrial water use ratio.

Table 2. Percentage industrial water use by years for cumulative percentiles of 60-95.

Disproportionate Burden

The statue states that an urban retail water supplier that has substantial percentage of industrial water use in its service area may exclude process water from the calculation of gross water use to avoid a disproportionate burden on another customer service. After selecting an initial cumulative percentage of 80 percent as a cut-off point, resulting in 4 percent or more of industrial water use, compared to the total water use, as substantial water use, we then assessed the effect of the industrial water use on gpcd of the service area. Figure 3 shows the cumulative percentage of retail water suppliers versus the gpcd from the industrial water use alone for years 2005-2008. From this it is estimated that using the 80 percent range would result in an average increase of gpcd of 7.5 gallons. The increase of 7.5 gpcd doesn't appear to be significant impact and doesn't create disproportionate burden on other customers. [it may be useful to show the average gpcd of the water supplies and show 7.5 gpcd is what percentage of the supplier's gpcd] It should be noted that there are a couple of outliers that had values over 300 gpcd. The outliers were not shown on the graph so that the chart clearly shows the trend where the 80 percent intersects the curve. Dropping the outliers from the curve does not affect the analysis.

If we were to raise the cutoff point from the 4 percent range (this includes 20 percent of the water agencies) of total water use to 10 percent (or approximately 6 percent of the water agencies) the net increase to gpcd is approximately 15 gallons (figure 3). This appears to be a more reasonable cut off point defining a disproportionate burden on other customers and in meeting the intent of the statute.
